3.4 out of 5 stars withPages Wednesday, August 31, 2012 Cyrus Says Let Me Entertain You Performing with such great groups of musicians like The Who's Tommy in 1976 seems like a big-time label band (Depeche Mode would later be brought in to finish recording the album, according to a recent interview in NME). Peter Gabriel was thrilled to let Pete Brown at Virgin release his first solo album, Peter Gabriel. This just might be a good time for me to mention my involvement with Peter, as I was the team member who came up with the title song, "Big Time". As the bassline came from Lou Reizner and the keyboard and saxophone were played by David Leonard and Rick Maio, no one knows what inspired us. Whatever the reason, it made me feel good to be a part of such a stellar debut. Sitting by the River Thames, in South London at the time, we all sat together in the studio and played guitars and sang. It took a lot of pages of script to write the lyrics of the song, with Peter's sense of humor and charm written throughout. Wednesday, August 03, 2012 Just because I can My first concert was seeing The Who in a university gymnasium in Leipzig, Germany. I was a huge fan of the Who, only being 20. It's never easy to find gigs where the shows are in English with an appreciative audience. I'm so grateful to have had this experience and I've still got the ticket stub! After graduating from university, I was lucky to be accepted into a two-year course in journalism at the BBC. I moved to London as soon as I graduated in the summer of 1971, a time when most people moved abroad to find work. I was nearly married to a guy who was planning to move to Australia, after falling in love with his girlfriend on our first date. I was a bit of a daredevil with the idea of going to the other side of the planet. I told myself that if he didn't come, I would go alone. Later that year I met my husband, who was a very different type of guy than the boyfriend I had before. It wasn't easy to put my past behind me and start a new life together with somebody new. The first concert I went to was Pink Floyd playing at the Rainbow Theatre in Finsbury Park. I'd been a huge
