I have object in MongoDB with following structure. { "name": "Test name", "value": "Value" } There are some multiple objects similar to this with different name in my collection. My requirement is find out the ids of objects with name of "Test name" which has "value": "Value". It's like findByIdAndName("Test name", "Value") but without hard coding. A: You can use $elemMatch (In your query : { "name" : "Test name", "value" : "Value" } Q: Filtering a list of pandas dataframes with multiple conditions I have a list of dataframes that I want to filter so that I get a dataframe of the first instance of each dataframe based on the entries from multiple columns. An example of the dataframes is below. df1 ID Date Block

I personally think that §19.46(a) should include this specific wording: "unless a stockbroker or his agent purports to make a loan that will bear interest at a rate substantially above the prime rate," and the Division or Secretary should look into whether a broker would be acting as a "Criminal Manager" when it became essentially a loan. Most brokers who I have dealt with, though, are nice enough to make us aware of the situation so we can either invest in the funds ourselves or persuade the (borrowers) to do so. However, at the moment there is no legislation that specifically covers this, so what I'm proposing is to make the wording of the statute as it applies to conversions or gifts as follows: Unless a stockbroker or his agent purports to make a loan that will bear interest at a rate substantially above the prime rate and if the prime rate is not specified or is $1.00 per year, and no brokers are licensed to do business in Texas, or none reasonably competent in the business are willing to be licensed in Texas, a person with $500 or less as determined by the Division of Securities may not directly or indirectly, as a gift or otherwise, make loans that bear interest at a rate in excess of 12% per year, provided that persons with savings of $2,500 or more may not make a loan that bears interest at a rate in excess of 15% per year; and provided that a loan that bears interest at a rate in excess of 6% per year shall not be made to a purchaser of an investment contract 09e8f5149f

Runs on Windows 8/7/Vista/XP/2000 with the latest service packs installed Download it from the following link. Download SamFirm 2.0-1.4.9 One of the most important abilities in social media is the ability to stay connected to people that you care about. This will allow you to stay informed about the happenings of the people you care about. One of the biggest issues today is that we live in a world where distance does not matter. We are never more than a mouse click away from everything and anything we need. Unfortunately, that also means that we spend a lot of time being connected to people who do not care about us. We spend time updating our contacts list trying to make sure that we stay connected to the people that we love. We are always trying to make sure that we stay in touch with the people that we have fun with. We never want to be kept out of any fun. Sometimes that is not very easy. When we do not have time for ourselves, there is always something stopping us from being more social. Finding the time to socialize can often be difficult. To make matters worse, we are not the only people who struggle with this. People all around the world do as well. The struggle is real and there is an easy way to fix this. There is a company that actually specializes in helping people with this. It is called snapchat. With their instant messaging service, you can stay connected to people who want to communicate with you. This saves a lot of time and can keep you from missing out on one of the best parts of your day. Snapchat is a company that knows that having time for yourself can be a struggle. They are a company that wants to help. As one of their reps said, "Anyone can use snapchat. All we do is make it easy." That is the whole point of snapchat. They want everyone to have fun and be social. With the ease of using snapchat and the number of people that are using it, there is no doubt that they are doing something right. The use of this messenger is quickly growing. Recently, it was featured in an article on the "Today" show. This was the first time that this was ever done and there is no doubt that they will continue to do more of these things. This is a great way to stay connected to everyone you care about. Problem: Having never done anything with Viber, I knew the sensitivity of the parameters of a quantum state. Unlike classical bounds, the quantum Cramér-Rao bound does not require measurements on the system in order to estimate the parameters; rather, it requires only the generation and analysis of probability distributions. It was first derived by Helmut Rauch and Vladimir Winitzki in 1981. Classical version The classical Cramér–Rao inequality states that, if are random variables, then the mean-squared error is bounded by the following function of their variances: This bound is optimal in the sense that it is minimised at the points where the variances of become zero. In classical statistics, the minimum is given by the Cramér–Rao inequality (assuming the variances are non-negative). The classical Cramér–Rao inequality is strictly stronger than the Heisenberg
