KEYMACRO is a small and fast utility for recording keyboard events. It uses two techniques to record events: - Every keystroke is recorded and can be saved to file. - The keystroke frequency is automatically calculated and shown to the user so he can correct the calculation. Create as many macros as you want and record them as many times as you want. KEYMACRO enables you to see all the recorded macros and save them to file. The recorded macros are automatically replayed according to the keyboard layout and macros timing. KEYMACRO is written in Java and uses the `javax.swing.text.rtf.RTF` class. KEYMACRO allows to save to plain text files using many versions of the Plain Text Format (PLAIN). It can also save to other formats using External Formats (XUL, WYSIWYG). KEYMACRO can create new macros from scratch (it has a hotkey to rerun the last macro). It can also edit existing macros. KEYMACRO comes with a demonstration (using English keyboard). For a full list of features and options, see the About dialog.
