History The present-day building was erected in 1855 to a design by the Belfast architect William Kirkwood, and enlarged in 1887. It was named in honour of the Jewish philanthropist Albert Herzmann Sherwin, a Belfast merchant who was chairman of the Orangemen's Club. In the 1880s, the congregation became affiliated to the Unionist Party, and supported the Ulster movement. The synagogue was heavily damaged in the riots of August 1969.
