Ralph W. Adams was the first to develop a computerized drafting program, initially for the IBM 5100. After he sold the program, Adams went on to start his own company, Adams Engineering, where he continued to develop his CAD program, Concise. He eventually sold Concise to engineer Bernard Postlewaite, who used the money to fund Autodesk. In 1982, Autodesk was founded by Ralph W. Adams, Bernard Postlewaite and Keith Barlow. At that time, CAD programs were produced using a combination of BASIC and ADM-3 language, called AutoPLUS, on a DEC PDP 11 minicomputer. The firm achieved revenue of US$5 million in its first year of operation, 1985, with sales of $8.9 million in 1986, $15.2 million in 1987, $22.3 million in 1988, and $32.1 million in 1989. In 1990, sales had grown to $81.3 million. Autodesk's first CAD application was released in December 1982 as the AutoPLUS Drafting System and was used to draw architectural and engineering drawings on a DEC PDP 11. Over time, the original software grew into AutoCAD, which runs on DOS-based PCs. It can use mouse and keyboard input, and also supports a variety of pointing devices such as digitizing tablets. The first version of AutoCAD was released in 1985, as AutoCAD 1.0 and came with only a few features, such as a simple spline feature and the ability to clip shapes from existing drawings. Its user interface was simple, with a drawing area in the lower half of the screen and a property area in the upper half. As part of the public release of AutoCAD 1.0 in 1985, the company offered a time-limited subscription-based version of the software, AutoCAD Basic, for use by individuals. On June 6, 1990, the company released AutoCAD Extended, a version of the software that allowed for greater use in the drafting industry. The company continued to provide several versions of AutoCAD and AutoCAD LT until 1999, when it released AutoCAD 2004. AutoCAD LT AutoCAD LT (originally Autodesk LT) was created to help Auto

There are 3 different types of Xrefs: Xref, Xref+ (Xref_Plus) and Xref+ (Xref_Plus_Plus). The difference between Xref and Xref_Plus is whether the Xref header is automatically added to the Xref+ header and Xref+ (Xref_Plus) are created if an Xref+ header is not present.
