Furthermore, it supports the newest versions of SQL Server and all SQL server data types.

dotConnect for SQL Server Programming Studio Description: dotConnect for SQL Server Programming Studio is a Visual Studio plug-in that helps you create, configure and test web-enabled services. It helps you create ASP.NET services, with the ability to use any SQL database, custom database views, stored procedures, functions and CLR objects as well as standard and user-defined data providers. It automatically generates the database and web service configurations, the WSDL and XSD, the code that will be called from the clients, and the annotations that'll be added to the service interfaces. More advanced features allow you to modify the output of generated code (by replacing automatically created stubs, for example). Additionally, this plug-in lets you create and edit new or existing SQL database or XML document views using the same editor and features. You can't use and create these views manually. However, they can be accessed using SqlDataSource or SqlXmlDataSource elements in web apps. Furthermore, you can use the built-in test functions or run your custom-made TSQL or CLR procedures with the generated code and generate an XML document to test your function or

Powerful SDK for Microsoft SQL Server dotConnect for SQL Server's powerful, easily customizable connectivity layer enables you to build your own applications using the database itself. It supports many SQL server data types, and provides a rich set of logical and physical operations on those data types, as well as operators on DataSet tables. Complimentary .NET Compatibility Layer dotConnect for SQL Server provides a .NET compatibility layer, which allows you to work with data in your application in a similar manner as if it was stored in the database. The same API, stored procedures, methods, and tools used to build the .NET Framework will work with your database just as they do in the .NET Framework. A .NET Client Connections Support The dotConnect for SQL Server .NET Framework Connectivity Layer will allow you to communicate with SQL Server on the server using both an ASP.NET provider as well as a WinForms provider. This means that no matter which .NET Framework client you use, you can still use the same APIs to access data, whether it's stored in the database or you've pulled it from the database using a Data

download dotConnect for SQL Server Professional .NET 3.5 Framework is a Microsoft reference implementation of .NET platform. It is a C#, Visual Basic, and VB.NET derivative. It supports Common Language Runtime (CLR), Dynamic Language Runtime (DLR), Garbage Collection (GC), Managed Code, Managed Extensibility Framework (MEF), Unicode, XML, X-ray, Web Services, and Web site security. .NET Framework 3.5 provides many new features to the .NET Framework 2.0, 2.0 SP1, and 3.0. It has all of the features described in the previous version plus the following. .NET 3.5: Optimized for Application Domain Awareness Core Common Language Runtime Garbage Collection Framework Enables an AppDomain to work as an Application without of the usual limitations of a sandbox. Multithreaded The Dynamic Language Runtime now supports multi-threading. It uses a version of the native and managed threads implementation. The main threads are managed by the .NET Framework. A New, Optimized Environment for Windows Forms Completely rewritten Windows Forms runtime environment Additions to the System.Windows.Forms.dll The above changes in Windows Forms have been fairly simple and can be summarized as follows: The AppDomainModel has been overhauled to be more lightweight, and to better understand the business domain that it is being used to support. The MessageLoop has been optimized to improve the responsiveness and performance of a GUI application. There are many new controls that are surfaced on top of the native controls. Some of the new controls and their associated Windows Forms support include the following: Border Calendar Chart Checks CheckBox ComboBox DirectoryPicker Extended ComboBox Extended DataGridView Extended ListView Extended ToolStrip Float GridView GroupBox Hyperlink ListBox ListView NoteBook PlainTextBox ProgressBar RadioButton Radio
