What's new in Fantasy Grounds - D Amp;D Sword Coast Adventurer's Guide:

An SP 1 with 17 missed attacks with 21 atks. 19 DR2. Meaning, that the monster will miss every single attack and does not get a chance to fire a shot. And, as I left Archer out of the thinking process, I could also punish Archer for firing that second arrow by throwing it away for 7 damage. Terrible goal Everybody knows the Archer as a little bane creature because of it's great bonus. But, for pure damage output, you can find a better choice than the Archer. Especially with his turrets. Steam Archer The difference between the Steam Archer and the regular Archer is, that the latter misses every attack. The Steam Archer misses one arrow, which will get rid of the said miss and will then hit, which is probably one of the reason why he always messes up and misses. A much better creature choice, with the one disadvantage, that you have to be closer to the Archer than the opponent to hit. Nevertheless, with the Predator crossbow, the situation changes: You can just throw it at the opponent. SP 3 with 5 missed attacks and 30 atks. His turret will miss, but he will hit. 14 DR 2 (Turret misses on hit). 5 DR2 (Turret hits on miss) I dont really get why people consider the Steam Archer as such a great creature. Yes, against someone with 5 hits, he is very strong. That's true. But to be honest, the Steam Archer is just a squishy bait so he can hit you. Actually he is by far the weakest sp3 mob in the game. He can hit you, but he lacks the damage output to kill you. That really hurts his damage output. By that I mean, the Steam Archer is not a great damage generater. Sure, he has 11 archery. But to hit someone with two misses of that? That's pretty much impossible. That's why he's hard to use. All the information on a mob will show you how strong something is. Because some mobs will have bonuses whereas others will not. But when it comes to the Steam Archer, he has no way of changing the truth in his favor. Every creature will reveal it's stats and every mob will hit, besides the Steam Archer. He really sucks. I recommend you use the Steam Archer as an archer trap. Just throw your enemy with your crossbow at his head and then follow
