proposed in Korean Patent No. 10-1215756. As shown in FIG. 1, the conventional armrest for a chair includes: a base plate 11 having a storage part 12; a plurality of first tubes 16 vertically coupled with the storage part 12 of the base plate 11; a plurality of second tubes 17 disposed on the first tubes 16; and an armrest part 13 coupled with the second tubes 17. In addition, in the conventional armrest for a chair, each of the first tubes 16 has a structure in which the first tubes 16 are coupled in sequence and are formed in a round cylinder shape, and each of the second tubes 17 has a structure in which the second tubes 17 are coupled in sequence and are formed in a round cylinder shape. Furthermore, in the conventional armrest for a chair, a plurality of projections 16a are provided at an end portion of the first tubes 16, and a plurality of projections 17a are provided at an end portion of the second tubes 17. However, in the conventional armrest
