On its way to the fulfilment of its mission of colonization, the C61-ALV, which is responsible for the liberation of the system Yb-24, has been destroyed by a stray antimatter bomb. The ALV's successor, the C62-ALV-1A, has inherited the mission, but also has to deal with the disappearance of its predecessor and the suspicion of the crew that on the planet Blossnik a secret organization is concealing its actions. Infiltration and infiltration. What could be more fun than sneaking into a system, to discover its secret purposes? Intuitive user interface, detailed cutscenes and game mechanics immerse you in an interesting world that always offers new fascinating settings for the game. Ever changing weapons for the player. At the beginning of the game your ship has an arsenal of only three weapons, as you will be given more powerful weaponry throughout the game. The discovery of new skills and weapons takes place in a game where you can master all possible ways of fighting. From mysterious worlds to unexpected resolutions. The game starts with the ship of our main character being on its way to a distant planet that has an enigmatic and somehow disturbing history for the crew. An asteroid field, strange and hostile aliens, a few obstacles and then finally the planet Blossnik where the crew can finally embark on its mission. In addition to the most widespread weapons, you will have the chance to equip your ship with more exotic weapons that can reach the limits of the spacecraft. New weapons will be revealed throughout the game and will give you the possibility of a strategy in the fight, choosing the best weapons and executing them in a well thought-out manner. The game is non-linear with the player able to decide how to proceed in the game by setting a goal in mind, which will then be reported to the rest of the crew. This is Star Theory, the game that everyone will play at least once. THE REASON WHY: We feel that most computer games are not interactive enough for them to satisfy us. We look at the screen and only read or watch the story and characters - everything else is an extra. In this case we asked ourselves if the game shouldn't be more. That is why we worked on this game in such detail and over a great period of time - only to find it getting rather boring. We then thought: "what if every time we insert a game into our society it somehow shows that there c9d1549cdd

In StrikeForce Kitty you are a crime-fighting felino who has to stop crime from taking over the city. Are you ready to be the strikeforce? To play the game, you need a 3D game console. PS: StrikeForce Kitty is provided for private test purposes only. File type: Music StrikeForce Kitty: Soundtrack 01: 1. Boss Fight "Wooow, welcome to the office. This is the most beautiful office ever, the speakers are really nice, and the chairs are so comfortable!" "Gee... it's a pleasure to work here.""And this is my office mate." In the office you need to stop thieves and wicked cats from stealing your property. Cool! You are StrikeForce Kitty! "This kind of work is really hard for me, but the boss told me to keep going." You are a felino police officer, you are brave and determined, and you're looking for a new job. "What kind of thief are you?" Let's go to the shop first." "This one is yours, babe." "This is awesome. This is exactly what you need." "Ha ha. Okay, let's keep going. Nice shoes, girl." There is always lots of goods to steal. The thief doesn't care, who he steals from... "This is it, baby." "This is really cool, what a cool cat." You are StrikeForce Kitty! "What a delicious cat." He will not hurt you and is kind to me." "I am so happy, he is my dream cat!" "Ding ding. That's it." "Look, can you feel how soft it is? "Ah ha. This looks like it belongs to the cat." "Oh, my, can you feel how soft it is? "Wow, you are so cool." "This looks like it belongs to the cat." "It's not nice. He has really tiny paws." "This one has a really cool shape." "Wow, this is a really cool toy." "Nice, this looks like it belongs to the cat." The rich cats want to steal your property. Can you stop them? "Welcome to the office. This is the most beautiful office ever, the speakers are really nice,

You are a character in the Dungeonlands setting's Tomb of the Lich Queen. You are the party's cleric and the game master's side character. The Tomb of the Lich Queen is a sentient gem, artifact, and (somewhat) abominable corrupted deity. The Tomb of the Lich Queen has for centuries been the power source for this world's magical and divine energy. It is sick, shifting, and falling apart. If it fell into the hands of a lich, it would collapse that world's magical and divine magic into a skeletal form. This group of players is, perhaps, more concerned about the new lich that's been discovered, but the tomb is in your party's area and you have to work with it. The Tomb of the Lich Queen creates magical effects that are undetectable by anyone other than the members of your party. You are all (but one) evil. Due to your alignment, you will have this sick, shifting, and crumbling gem in your party. Your party has little knowledge of the influence of the unknown Tomb of the Lich Queen and the rest of your world (unless you choose to tell them earlier). However, you know it is all-powerful. You know the lich is nearby (unless you choose to use Nightmare Abomination). You know the worst thing that could happen to the lich is that it is detected. Your wicked alignment is your best asset, so the odds are not in your favor. You'll have to trust that your players are too stubborn to spend years destroying themselves in a corpse-farm. Your party (with its success) can improve your Tomb of the Lich Queen, making its shifts noticeable and fewer and further apart. You reward them for their efforts with extra actions and reward traps. As the game goes on, your Tomb gains abilities that are rare for a gem of its radiance. However, the protections grow stronger, too. You can use the Tomb's abilities to affect its defenses, and the defenses feel like you're trying to physically break through a force field. Reprint this [Campaign Guide] once in a month or so. After a while, the cosmic horror will feel too much in your game. Two levels at a time, the Tomb of the Lich Queen will improve. If your party can't handle the power of an A+ gem, then expect to have to take a level-long break between the consequences and actions in the Tomb's protective field. The Tomb's special abilities are impressive, too.

This game is an old one with a 2.5 year release date, one year after the project was announced. Still using Game Maker. But making an indie game in a language I don't know is hard, and I couldn't find a partner. So, far, I am almost starting a 2nd game - a remake of this game in Unreal Engine 4 for the PC. Play a game: You pick up the meteorite, throw it and time it just right - it smashes the objects/people you pass by, but if it is too early, you still have to fly through a city and you will miss many places The city is the future high-society In the end of the game you will find a way back to space, and maybe even start your own asteroid belt Let it bounce: There is no point in trying to push a boulder, it will hit exactly what it should hit, but sometimes it bounces back in an unexpected way, some objects are not just static, they can be rotated or moved, and you can try to avoid the bounced rocks Try to smash stuff and to not smash your own rock. It is really challenging to launch the rock and time it just right - the game might take you much more time to give you the best time Touch of magic: The town is a flat series of connected rooms - at the start of the game you have the option to select a room and start a random one The bottom of the screen is a single spot The bottom of the screen is the "common" spot, by default Gravity doesn't affect the bottom of the screen Touch the bottom of the screen and gravity changes it's direction Jump to the floor by touching the bottom of the screen Inputs: Hold a mouse button over a meteorite to throw it If a meteorite touches an object and it's on the floor, it gets destroyed If you get hit, you lose a life - touch the bottom of the screen to get your life back Don't press the space bar. When you press the space bar - the rock touches the floor, and you lose your rock Cave is the beginning of the game. You have a rock in your hand. You can throw it down. Your character is a ball, which you can move vertically or horizontally. The top of the screen is a single pixel. Your rock will keep falling down and destroying everything under it
