Informations regarding the developer The developer of this software is MyHeritage, based in Israel. However the official website of this software can't be found.The present invention relates to a processing method of a magnetization signal and an apparatus for executing the same. As a method of detecting or estimating an object magnetic field, a magneto resistive sensor and a Hall element have been conventionally known (for example, as described in Patent Document 1). The magneto resistive sensor obtains a magnetic field distribution of an object by calculating a resistance change rate of a magneto resistive element in response to a variation in an external magnetic field. In contrast, the Hall element detects a magnetic field distribution of an object by calculating an output voltage value of a sensor coil which receives a magnetic field produced by a magnet arranged on the back side thereof. The invention disclosed in Patent Document 1 relates to a method of avoiding a mutual interference between two such sensors which are arranged in close proximity. For example, the magneto resistive element and the Hall element are disposed such that an angle of intersection therebetween is included within the ranges of 10-30 degrees and 45-60 degrees, and each of the sensors is arranged at a position where the strength of a magnetic field is weakened or vanished. Patent Document 1: Japanese Patent Application Publication No. 2010-37471Q: Entity Framework Core 2.0 - Update not working if the entity has a foreign key I have an Entity Framework Core 2.0 (EF Core 2.0) ASP.NET Core 2.0 web application and I'm using DbContext. I created the database and when I tried the migration I got this error: The entity type 'Tax' requires a primary key to be defined I created the Tax entity and set the primary key (TaxId) to be a foreign key to the string type Id field in the TaxMap table: This is how the Tax entity looks like: 0cc13bf012
