NEW YORK CITY - The New York Masonic Temple is a grand old building that has watched over Masons throughout the city. The establishment was damaged by the crazed Rutger Rummel, who barged in breaking down doors, knocking down walls and chasing the guards, who just simply ignored him. After opening the grand doors of the New York Masonic Temple, Rummel cleared out of the building, along with the few guards that remained loyal to the Masons. The only thing that was left in the temple, was a lone guard in the rafters. Rummel's next task was to erect his new rack where he could keep some of his recent victims captive. They call it the Stabby Booth. The guard was terrified that Rummel was coming after him and shot his gun at a red streak to scare the bastard off. Particles exploded off the gun and the guard yelled a one word obscenity at the imaginary man that just stepped through a portal... IT WOULD BE YOU!C. Doron Estr

Aleksei Podgorsky Aleksei Valerievich Podgorsky (; 12 April 1796, Riazan, Russian Empire (now Volgograd Oblast, Russia) - 3 April 1885, Saint Petersburg) was a Russian writer of the XIX century. Biography His father was a landowner, his mother was a maid in the princely family. The beginning of his career as a writer does not seem to be completely determined. Probably, it was with the idea of a career as an engineer. But first he went to Russia and entered a school of Marine engineering. It is clear from one of his novels called A Life, born to be a seaman () and which had a great success. At the end of 1811, he entered the marine artillery service and in 1814 fought in the Peninsular War, from 1815 to 1816 in the wars between Russia and Sweden, and at his return to Russia was a gunner of the steam frigate Isdraya. In 1817 he entered the University in Saint Petersburg and subsequently returned to the Russian service. In 1826-1828, Podgorsky was the writer of the “Letter of the 222 Barbary Hawks of Karawany”, as an editorial, did not go beyond the efforts of that time period. Also, as a member of the “Order of Honour” (Hospodar Pecherskogo), he was occupied with the history and the Archaeology and devoted his attention to the Russian actors of the Premiere Division, and as member of the “Club of Seil”, did not limit itself to literary subjects. In 1834 he wrote “The Corsair” (, “Саяр”). Along with the typical Gothic theme, he wrote about a people of free time (the gypsies). The symbolism of such a story was inevitable: Zaimis was transported from the Russian, Russian sailor to the eclat. The company is uniquely positioned to serve the needs of operations with unmatched video security / video remote inspection and
