Transcript for Sen. Thom Tillis focuses on 9/11 as he reflects on his time in office

Reporter: It was only four years ago that the freshman senator from North Carolina was sworn in during a ceremony at the 911 memorial. Yesterday, he spoke with WTVD's "OutFront" about his time in the upper house and his upcoming book. But was he ever bothered growing up in a state with such a tragic history? Well, he says it served as a reminder of the tragedy even when you'd learn some detail about, you know, families that lost their loved ones in, you know, the terrorist attacks. Reporter: And he recalls attending an annual memorial ceremony with his parents and saying goodbye to the school principal he last saw in third grade. Part of the job is dealing with the past in a state like North Carolina and the very first question he answers in this interview is about a book. I'm writing a book about what I learned in the two years that I ran the senate and that's why I'm having the book party in October. Reporter: He also wanted to touch on some of the issues he's focused on while in office. After just two years, he was pushing through more than $500 million in funding to North Carolina's public schools and holding hearings on climate change and health care reform. It's important in our state to have bipartisan support to do the important work, you know, the federal government isn't always able to do, but we can at least, at the state level, have conversations around and discuss issues. We're talking about the price of beer right now. Reporter: Well

Kansas City BB/SUZ Kansas City BB/SUZ was a tugboat service company operating at the time of the 1989 Exxon Valdez oil spill. It was owned by the parent company, Marine Enterprises, Inc., and was based in Pittsburg, Kansas. The company's name is a reference to the Kansas City Terminal Railway BB Steamers. When the Exxon Valdez was leaking oil in 1989, the tugboat service company was contracted by Exxon to continue the process of skimming it out of the sea. The company's owner, Marine Enterprises, owned five tugs, including a small tug, Griggs, and three Mississippi River barges. These barges were renamed after the disaster, in a reference to Montana's tugs and barges after the 1980 Exxon Valdez oil spill. The company had signed a contract to be paid $250,000 a month until it was paid off. See also Marine Enterprises, Inc. Exxon Valdez
