Dear Business Owner, Congrats on your business! This is a pretty big deal. It's not only rewarding to be able to start your own business, it's also empowering. You now have a say in how you spend your own time, so make sure you're getting the most out of this experience. Today's Tools You'll Need It's time to get your business running, and boy do you get to spend the next few weeks getting everything organized! I'm sure you'll be ready for anything this business throws your way, but to get you going smoothly, I have a list of tools you're going to need. (Although I could talk all day about new tools that are trending, if you're just getting started, stick with the basics for now) Fiverr is a price-based service that can help you build your business brand online. It's a great way to build a little side hustle, get experience on your resume, make some new contacts, etc. You basically start at $5 and work your way up. You're able to set your own prices and be flexible in what you do. If you want the basics, start with a review. The reviews are really the basic of the platform; you get paid $5 for each review and a free product. You can also offer a discount for reviews and you'll be on your way to winning some new customers. You can get started in just a few minutes from your computer. The easiest way to get started is to use your Facebook account because it's connected and easy to start. You simply join the group and follow the steps. You'll be able to see a review on your profile. When you're ready for a review, I recommend reaching out to the person you want to review. You can ask them to give you their email address and leave you some details about the product/service you're offering. They'll get back to you with their details and you can set up the rest. There are some great packages available for those of you looking to make some money online. For new reviewers, you can get started with a free package that will give you a test drive to make sure it's the right fit for you. If you're e79caf774b
