Just had a guy knock on my door so I used my poker face for a while and he left. VSDC Video Editor Pro 6.4.1 Crack Full Version Activation Key Why could he have been stopped on the outside? The most difficult part of the life was on a bus to the god.The full version of the software with Crack..Q: Error while deleting a row in a gridview I have a gridview and I want to delete a single row. It is a Yes or No field and I have another checkbox on this same page which I want to prevent the user from deleting this row if the checkbox is checked. On the button click, I have this: if (checkBox1.Checked == true) { GridViewRow row = GridView1.Rows[e.RowIndex]; string[] columnName = GridView1.Columns[0].HeaderRow.Cells[1].Text.Split('|'); dataTable.Rows[row.RowIndex].Delete(); GridView1.DataSource = null; GridView1.DataBind(); } It compiles fine, but when I run it, I get this error: Object reference not set to an instance of an object. Line that contains delete.

A: As mentioned before, you should remove the checking of the Checkbox before attempting to delete the row. Checkboxes are handled as ToggleButtons. If you still want to check if the row to be deleted has this checkbox checked, you should change your code as follow: var checked = checkBox1.Checked; if (checked) { GridViewRow row = GridView1.Rows[e.RowIndex]; string[] columnName = GridView1.Columns[0].HeaderRow.Cells[1].Text.Split('|'); dataTable.Rows[row.RowIndex].Delete(); GridView1.DataSource = null; GridView1.DataBind(); } Trade the Tribune (good article on ACTA) ...A new thread about one of the key players behind the European Union's Anti-Counterfeiting 1cdb36666d
