What's new in Cube Worlds Survival:

is an expansion for the hockey version of Tabletop Simulator for the Xbox One, PlayStation 4, and Steam. It allows for a wide variety of maps and teams, as well as asynchronous multiplayer on the same map over Xbox Live, which can be used in conjunction with Friends Party or Party Chat using the Party Perks. The game can also be played in a host-based mode, where one player's game is hosted for all of the players to experience. Along with the online play, the game includes an extensive career mode and an arena creation utility.

Gameplay Goons: Legends of the Hockeyverse is an asynchronous, digital version of the tabletop hockey game, along the lines of Atari's RollerCoaster Tycoon. This game is set in the same universe of the tabletop game, which saw the Great Goon War and the dawn of the Industrial Era. In comparison to the tabletop game, the digital version features more characters, more teams, and additional rules and policies. The player is given the choice of one of nine different leagues, which differ in their team size and structure. The game does not feature coaching, though some options are limited based on the current and recruiting capabilities of each of the teams. The rules are, in general, heavily simplified and will allow more consistent gameplay. For example, replacement goals are not allowed, instead a team gaining a lead can score the first goal themselves (counting as a lead goal for teams leading the game at the end of the period), where a team behind can score their own lead goal. Replays are not used, and penalties are considered to be a five-minute, three minute, or five minute, depending on the leagues being played. Using the same UI from the tabletop version, this game features an arena creation and management utility, allowing the player to create arenas to host games in. As well as allowing for custom arena design such as team venues and the ability to place advertisements, while adding additional features such as pads and custom-positioned offensive and defensive players to the character models themselves. Along with on-line multiplayer, there is an online career mode. Each player builds a team from scratch, in addition to building player and team roles and building custom player and team roles. From there, players can choose from a number of different league settings, which stipulate recruitment restrictions, rules on player ability, and the system in which player's incomes are accrued. Finally, after their player career has started, the player can choose to spend their sal
