Saw a "perfect" medical app for tablets, and decided it would be more useful if I could have some synchro'n between my phone and the app so it would all be together. Overview Given the serious nature of any medical condition requiring your attention, it can often be difficult to remember all the critical information about a given patient. If you would like to help make such a medical system of record practical and more efficient, then use the medical system to store your patients, their medications and your interactions with them. Allows one to assign a note to any patient or each patient has it's own record. Allows for notes to be added to any patients record when prescription is put into the system. Allows for notes to be added to any patient's record when a doctor visits. Allows notes to be added to any patient's record after a surgery. As medical interaction can take place in any number of ways, "At Time of Prescription" allows for notes to be added to any prescription given to any patient. As more interactions take place, notes can be added to any of the notes in a patient's record. If you have doctor's notes from prior record or hospital records, you can also edit these notes as well as any of your notes.
