Field of the Invention This invention relates to apparatus for the processing of a rotary press by a liquid medium, and especially to a method and apparatus for conditioning the surface of a roll in a xerographic rotary press. 2. Description of the Prior Art In rotary press printing apparatus, the web of paper, plastic or other suitable material passing through the nip between a pair of rolls, is pressed between rollers so that it will be printed with an image or other desired information. It is necessary to provide cleaning of the rolls to remove any contaminants such as those in the web material, or paper dust, which would interfere with the operation of the printing apparatus. For example, in an xerographic rotary press, known in the art, the generally cylindrical roll is provided with a coating of a material such as silicone oil or the like to provide a slick surface on the roll to inhibit the adherence of particles to the roll surface. It is important to spray the surface of the roll so that it will be effective, and this requires a plurality of nozzles to be mounted on the periphery of the roll. Also it is desirable to clean the roll between color stations to remove contaminants such as dust, paper dust and the like, and it has also been found that the presence of static

Saturday, April 28, 2009 Mormon Community College Mormon Community College is one of those great corporations that is available to us. It is one of the many places where you can go to learn to be a better person, and a better Mormon. A member of the educational staff that I spoke with today said that a large percentage of the students at MCC are non-Mormon, and that it is a place where you can learn to be a good citizen, and a good person. But in my family it is probably best known as the place where I went to learn how to be a better DJ. MCC has "technical" programs, and when I entered MCC in the late 70's, I remember my brother and his friend both going in to the sound lab there to make some money to buy a C64. Like many Utah colleges, it was once a public school. Many of the architects of the system are to be found among the bookshelves at this place. Today, MCC is run by a nonprofit, and is supported by the LDS Church, the local school district, and the state of Utah. Like many local universities, the school offers graduate degrees as well as undergraduate programs. And it offers free tuition and in-state rates for all students! One of the great things about Utah College is that while tuition is extremely high, most school supplies are included in tuition. It is all of about $5 a credit to go to school here, and if you are from outside the area you can get aid to help even more. It is hard to believe that in 1971 (and later) there were virtually no Mormons with graduate degrees. At the time I was in my 2nd year of church history, and I remember thinking that something was very wrong with the Church if we had to ask our families for money to go to college, and if at the same time we had to invite our bishops to come in and see what we were studying. Just a few short years later, I was able to move to Utah and work at the DoD. That was the dawning of the "new era" of Mormon academe. Today over a third of the students here are from outside the area. The church has been growing a steady stream of
