<http://www.polonmed.elca.pl>Protective effects of granulocyte-macrophage colony-stimulating factor on hyperoxic lung injury in rats. Because a previous study demonstrated the inability of granulocyte-macrophage colony-stimulating factor (GM-CSF) to protect against hyperoxic lung injury, this study examined the potential role of GM-CSF in preventing lung injury induced by hyperoxia. On Day 0, rats were divided into three groups: control group, exposed to hyperoxia

(90%) for 4 days; GM-CSF group, exposed to hyperoxia + GM-CSF, and GM-CSF alone group. On Day 5, the animals were killed, and the lungs were harvested. Hyperoxic lung injury was assessed by measurements of the wet-to-dry weight ratio, cell proliferation, DNA oxidation, and airway responsiveness. The wet-to-dry weight ratio, DNA oxidation, and airway responsiveness were significantly increased in the hyperoxia group compared with the control group. There was a significantly lower wet-to-dry weight ratio in the hyperoxia + GM-CSF group and GM-CSF alone group compared with the hyperoxia group. DNA oxidation was significantly decreased in the hyperoxia + GM-CSF group and GM-CSF alone group compared with the hyperoxia group. On Day 5, the airway responsiveness was significantly increased in the hyperoxia group compared with the control group. There was a significantly decreased airway responsiveness in the hyperoxia + GM-CSF group and GM-CSF alone group compared with the hyperoxia group. The results from this study demonstrate that administration of GM-CSF is protective of lung injury induced by hyperoxia. Image caption Diddy has been candid about the pain he is still feeling from his divorce US hip-hop singer Diddy has come under fire for alluding to alleged domestic violence towards his former wife. He has been asked by multiple women, including actress Gabrielle Union, about the "blame" he has passed around during his divorce from the singer and media mogul Kimberly Sevilla. Kimberly, real name Kimberly Jones, filed for divorce in June but the pair have not officially separated. Diddy told in October that the public speculation was impacting on his private life. In light of the allegations, the singer even sought a restraining order against Kimberly. Diddy, 50, and Kimberly, 44, were married in 1990. Diddy's first studio album was called The Bad Boy, and all of the proceeds went to charity. He has since had eight children with Kimberly, including four-year-old son David Boudreaux. Kimberly and Diddy have been in and out of courtrooms for years - she filed for divorce in October after Diddy's alleged assault of a female friend in March led to a criminal conviction.
