The show was held at an underground club, where photographers needed a password to get in, said Rodrigo Janot, who said he was the show's photographer. "We tried to access the venue but the response from security was very clear — 'No photos, no shooting,' " he said. At the end of the show, Mr. Janot said, the security guards ordered several women out of the venue. When the women asked about the photographers, Mr. Janot said, the security guards turned their backs, walked out of the venue and left the photographers in the street.Author Archives: leenhweger Errands to run.
